

Jack and Holly Bartholmai
2006 Friends of Education

Jack and Holly Bartholmai have volunteered their time to enhance learning opportunities for sixth grade students at the Middle School. Holly served as a volunteer instructor and shared her expertise about plants on sixth grade field trips to Williams Woods and Marsh Haven Nature Center.

Jack has volunteered time to share his expertise about birds with sixth grade science classes at the Middle School. He has shared narrated slide presentations, helped students construct bluebird houses, talked to students about the importance of bluebird trails, and encouraged students and parents to monitor trails of houses.

Jack and Holly also share their expertise about nature and bluebirds with the Beaver Dam community. Through the Daily Citizen, they share photographs and information with readers. They have also developed educational slide presentations and shared them with community and church groups.
