General Housekeeping

As we enter the last quarter of the year, it can be easy to say, 'Who cares? There are only ____ weeks of school left,' but we have been working hard and now we have to keep it up-there is still a lot of learning to accomplish! Please continue to help your child at home by checking and signing planners every night and making sure homework is completed! Thank you!

We will finish our Forward Exam testing tomorrow for math! They did a wonderful job 'showing what they know' for our ELA portion of the test last week. Thank you for helping your child feel ready to go! They will rock it! :)

Reading

We learned more about Thomas Edison this week, as students revisit comprehension strategies of main idea/details, fact vs opinion.

Math

This week students will be reviewing concepts learned over the course of the year: subtraction, addition, word problems, telling time, fractions.

Writing/ Grammar

The students will begin a new genre of writing soon: poetry! We will look at using descriptive words, rhyming, alliteration to make our poetry exciting!

In grammar, we are learning about complex sentences: Combining an independent clause with a dependent clause: Since it was raining, the students could not go outside.

Social Studies

The students are learning more about American Heritage and culture this week. We have explored different symbols of patriotism.

Science

Students have learned about what it takes for a flower to produce seeds this week as we learn more about the life cycles of plants!

Happy Birthday!

There are no birthdays to celebrate this week!

Upcoming Events

- No School: Friday, April 18th

Reminders

The final book order of the year is due on Tuesday, April 15th!
